This year is my 16th Thanksgiving and this year, like every year before, I am caught out by it. Jeff Silvertooth always reminds me to put the “bottom line up front” and Steve Smith always begs me to write more clearly. I hope that I am following this advice here in wishing you Happy Thanksgiving and safe travels as many of you spend time with your family and friends. I encourage everyone to spend your time on you and yours.

Because of my own life history, and what I experience daily in our Extension, research, and education delivery, I am very aware of, and thankful for, what I believe to be the most impactful and transformational enterprise I could be a part of. Every day that we together fulfill our purpose we’re transforming individual lives and families, and futures. There isn’t a person in our organization who isn’t so doing. So I am even more thankful for what you do to make our enterprise what it is and what it can be.

Best wishes,
Shane
